Helping Adopters find their Perfect Canine Match

ASPCA®'s Meet Your Match®

Meet Your Match (MYM) is the only proven method for evaluating a dog's energy level, interests and what makes them tick. When you complete a quick lifestyle survey, we can help you meet your perfect match. MYM helps take some of the guess work out of finding a pet you can really click with—the first time.

Canine-ality

The Meet Your Match Canine-ality assessment begins with an initial MYM SAFER™ (Safety Assessment for Evaluating Rehoming) behavior screening to make sure each pup is a good candidate for adoption. Dogs are then tested on their friendliness, playfulness, energy level, motivation and drive, and placed into one of nine color-coded Canine-alities.

The Dog Adopter Survey

Here's where you come in. You'll be able to complete this one-pager in a matter of minutes to help find out which canine-ality gets along best with your personality. The survey is lighthearted and upbeat, and after taking it, you'll find out what color you are.

Green adopters are most successful with pups who like to be mentally and physically engaged.

Orange adopters are a good fit with dogs who are responsive and enjoy regular activity and interaction.

Purple adopters are comfortable with canines who have a laidback attitude and prefer an easygoing lifestyle.

Meet the Canine-alities

A dog's score from the Canine-ality™ Assessment places the dog in one of three color-coded categories (purple, orange, or green) representing the dog's level of persistence in pursuing something that he or she wants.

Each color category includes three Canine-ality descriptions that tell adopters how individual dogs are motivated. The evaluator chooses the Canine-ality that best fits the dog based on the animal's score and on the evaluator's determination of the dog's source of motivation internal, external, or social (i.e. human attention) while conducting the assessment.
